1	Mr. Hatch was tall and thin and he did not smile. Every morning at 6:30 sharp he would leave his brick house and walk eight blocks to the shoelace factory where he worked. At lunchtime he would sit alone in a corner, eat his cheese and mustard sandwich, and drink a cup of coffee. Sometimes he brought a prune for dessert.
3	After work he would make two stops: at the newsstand to get the paper, and at the grocery store to buy a fresh turkey wing for his supper. After
4	supper he read the paper, took a shower, and went
